We read the story of the Pizza delivery woman who was fired because she shot a wouldbe robber. It seems drivers ain't suppose to carry guns or resist robberies in any fashion. However this woman was working in the "after midnight hours" and shot a young man in the leg AFTER his gun misfired while aimed pointblank at her chest. The story had a happy ending however. While the woman didn't blame the company for firing her, apparently public pressure caused them to reconsider and the woman got her job back. We hate she was disobeying rules, but wish they would figure out some way to give her a promotion.

The daily papers carried an Associated Press picture this week of Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney dining with troops in Egypt. They were playing no favorites with their free advertising, because the picture showed at least five different brands of canned soft drinks on the table. No one company can pass the picture around claiming they are "favored by 4 out of 5 front line soldiers." Real close cropping of the photo could show Cheney and two or three of the troops and one Coke can ... that could be positive advertising if Coca Cola could use the photo as "news" without getting Pornography is against the law, however we do have trouble deciding the legal definition of pornography. Now in Broward County, Florida a movement is afoot that could remove the confusion, at least in the area around Pompona Beach. Al Goldstein, the publisher of the tabloid Screw (pornography by most everyone's definition) is planning to run for sheriff in 1992. In fact to listen to his reasoning, one tends to agree his one sin is the tabloid he publishes while the incumbent must be what some would call a "crooked politician." But then that is his opponent talking. This campaign should prove colorful. Oh, race has already gotten into the confrontation. Goldstein points out he is a Jew, while his opponent is Cuban ... there are more Jews in the county than Cubans.

We know from the comments we have heard around Elba during the past few days that the community is praying for a speedy recovery of teenager Indya Lawless. The young lady was seriously injured in an automobile accident "at the beach" last Friday afternoon. She was the only one hospitalized, but her injuries were enough for all three occupants of the car. As we reported on a front page story, she is improving. We didn't try to report the details of the accident, having noted early on that there were a number of different stories on that. We were amused that some of those telling them Dear Editor version prevail. We ain't ready to fight so will just spend our thoughts be- ever could be, ing thankful three Elba teenagers are still alive.

Pre-need Funeral Planning now available at Haves Funeral Home

I would personally like to express my sincere appreciation to Dr. James R. Zuffa, Diana Allen, Vicky General Hospital for their profes-need for additional medical treatment, and swift arrangement of transportation and admission to Baptist Medical Center in Montgomery, Alabama on May 21, 1991. This has certainly impressed upon me the importance of Elba General Hospital. I realize this it is impossible for a community this size to support specialized medical care; however, it is comforting to know that we have a place with professionals who can recognize specialized medical problems, take the necessary interim measures, and refer patients to the appropriate medical specialists. It had been quite a while since an Elba athlete received a scholarship to 4-7, Elba Merchants 3-9 and Work Enterprise State Junior College; however, all that changed last week when Release 1-9. David Rowe signed a baseball pact and both Susan Johnson and Kenya Hammond signed softball scholarships. I'd always wondered why more Elba players didn't sign with ESJC, especially since the school is only fifteen-miles away. Now maybe the folks over at ESJC will find out that the Elba kids can play, too.
